ATIS Developing New Power Standard, Expected to Take Year or Longer

June 3, 2020

ATIS is developing a power standard to speed deployment of 5G, small cells and other distributed networks, a process expected to take at least a year. “The work addresses the need for a standard for remotely powering distributed devices that consume more than the 100-Watt constraint identified by other industry standards,” ATIS said Tuesday.